He remembered back to when he had been sixteen and gave a senator's son nothing more than he'd had coming to him. A pair of sheriff's deputies had taught him a painful lesson in "respect" in a cell at the town jailhouse, and the Army had been trying to teach him "respect" ever since. But that had been Earth-style respect. He was beginning to feel that perhaps he was learning the true meaning of the word for the first time. True respect could only be earned; it couldn't be extorted. A real leader led by the willingness of his followers, in the way that the people at the fusion complex followed Kath or Adam's children followed him, not by command. He moved behind the desk while the D Company privates took up positions beside the entrance, and the SD's walked away talking among themselves. Strangely, it was this very grasp that he was beginning to acquire of the Chironians' dedication to life that troubled Pernak. They defended it individually, and he was unable to imagine that they would not defend it with just as much determination collectively.
